

Games & Puzzles

Magazine

Playthings

July 1, 2001

If any category is best equipped to weather the stormy economy, it's games and puzzles. Families will look to inexpensive alternatives for their entertainment needs. A night at the ballpark may bow to APBA's dice-and-chart-based baseball games available in three level of complexity. Hours wasted queuing at the local amusement park may be better spent on one of Wrebbit's new, pliable Perfalock puzzles.

From the few minutes it takes to play a round of Out of the Box's smash Apples to Apples to the hours of turn-based strategy in Avalon Hill's Axis and Allies: Pacific retailers can provide even the most finicky family, with an evening's entertainment.

COPYRIGHT 1999 Reed Business Information

<http://www.highbeam.com/doc/1G1-77060500.html>

HighBeam Research is operated by Cengage Learning. © Copyright 2012. All rights reserved.

www.highbeam.com