

APBA Computer Baseball Has Arrived!

APBA Major League Players Baseball: Master Edition is here. It's the APBA Major League Baseball Master Game—our advanced baseball game—adapted for computer play. The game has taken four years to develop, and veteran APBA board game players who have tested it are raving about it. APBA Major League Players Baseball is being published by Random House Software of New York City.

The current edition of this new computer game uses the 1984 baseball season. The APBA player cards and Master symbols for 1984 are built into the program. Other seasons and selected great teams from past years will become available in the future.

At present, the software runs only on IBM® and certain "compatible" personal computers, but a conversion for some Apple® II computers is tentatively planned.

Get a free detailed description of this marvelous new product now! Just check the appropriate box on the reverse side of this flyer. (If you responded to our computer survey earlier this year, you should already have received this information. Please don't request it again unless you really want another copy of the same material.)
